CHAPEL COMMENT

Lord of the Harvest, Lord of the field.

Lord of the Harvest, Lord of the field
give thanks to God now in nature revealed.

Give thanks for the sun, the wind and the rain,
thanks for the crops that feed us again.

The corn safely cut is gathered inside.
We thank you O Lord that you can provide.

The trees ripe with fruit stand proud in the sun
We gather them now that summer has gone.

For yours is the wonder, yours is the power.
Yours is the glory of fruit and of flower.

In our plenty help us to see, the needs all around us whatever they be.
With food for the body, strength for the soul
healing and caring , making them whole.

Lord of the harvest Lord of the field
give thanks now to God in nature revealed.

Jancis Harvey

Dear Friends

In the midst of so much uncertainty and world-wide suffering, the Tokyo Olympics finally took place, albeit with a good deal of understandable opposition and concern. For those fortunate enough to be able to share in the excitement, it was good to have the chance to celebrate with Olympians from every sort of background as they competed for medals. For some, just being there was enough and was the summit of their sporting careers; for others Gold was the goal, and this the moment to crown their efforts with glory and public acclamation: anything less would be a disappointment.

But it's not only about the individual medal winner. Again and again, medal winner had a story to tell about those who had enabled them to achieve success, with many speaking of family support, and of other figures in their childhood who had helped and inspired them, as well as the professionals – nutritionists, physios, coaches, psychologists etc. - who had worked with them and brought them to this peak. Clearly, there is a very real and appropriate focus on one person, but that one person's achievements are built on the herculean efforts of many: we often forget that what look like individual sports are in fact very much team affairs, just as much as "team sports".

And what is true for sports, is just as true for everyday life. "No man is an island, entire of itself" as John Donne put it. True for the Church, too: we proclaim in The Creed that we believe in an apostolic Church (from Greek apostolos: messenger, person sent forth). So the whole church is sent by God, just as the first apostles were. Like them, we are sent to share in his mission in and to the world, individually yet together as his body, the church.

Before the pandemic, we had made very real and encouraging progress in developing the Vision for the Benefice (see below), and were starting to think about how that might be lived out at parish level via PCC Action Plans. I hope that these will begin to take shape as we move through the latter part of this year and into 2022. Beyond the constraints that Covid-19 still places upon us, and recognising that this winter may be a difficult one, we can and must look to the future: as Christians, our focus is on Christ, and he has invited us to share in the

In our parishes, we have individuals in particular roles and with particular responsibilities, but the church can't function without the whole congregation playing their part, too. As we look to the future in a changing world, we need to renew and retain our focus on the next stage of our journey as a Benefice – a journey into God's future that we make not alone, but together with one another and with Christ. It's not a journey for some, but a journey for all, and each of us has a role, a particular responsibility, both in our preparations and on the journey itself. We may feel that our role and responsibility is difficult to discern, that we can't imagine what we could possibly do, but God has something in mind and, if we go to him in prayer, we will discover that something. It might seem insignificant, might well be surprising, but whatever it is, that something will be vital if we want to share in the victory that Christ has already won.

Change, as I have said in the past, is not easy and can certainly be painful, but I leave you with these words from the book, "For All That Has Been, Thanks" by Rowan Williams and Joan Chittister:

"Division of opinion, too often the fault line of human relationships, is, when we embrace it openly, what invigorates thinking and stirs new thought. It is the ground of new beginnings, the beginning of new insight, the foundation of new respect for the other..... Creativity, it is too often forgotten, comes out of differences. It is the ability to function outside the lines, beyond the dots, despite the boxes and mental chains by which we have forever been constrained, that fits us to be the architects of the future. Instead, we want everyone to think alike when what we really need are people who are thinking newly – about theology, about God, about faith, about morality, about science, about life. "You won't find this year's birds in last year's nests," the proverb teaches, but we so easily miss the meaning of it entirely. Life is meant for moving on....."

With my love and prayers,

Miranda

A WEEK OF ACTIVITIES THAT FOCUS ON SUSTAINABILITY AND IMPROVING OUR ENVIRONMENT FOR A GREENER FUTURE.

In September communities across the country will join together for the Great Big Green Week. It will be the biggest event for climate and nature ever in the UK, and we want Welford to get involved.

We are putting together a series of events and activities throughout the week with the aim to promote sustainable and eco-friendly living with ideas for everyone.

The final program of events is still being finalized but we hope to include talks on growing your own veg and composting, reducing plastic use, zero-waste ideas, a film screening, a photo exhibition showcasing the beautiful place we live in, litter picking and more. Most importantly, we want to get everyone involved so if you are part of an organization and would like to host an event, or if you are someone who just wants to help out then please do get in touch. Otherwise, please keep a look out for more details over the coming weeks.

Jules Bennett, Hannah Bedard and Bill Wright

Come and Celebrate Great Big Green Week at St Mary's, Welford, at 2 o'clock on Sunday 26th September. This will be a short time for parishioners of all ages to consider together, through age-appropriate activities, our response to climate change.

Hope: empowered by the Spirit, we will share the Gospel with our community and the wider world. Just as God is a welcoming and inclusive God, we will be a welcoming and inclusive community, celebrating diversity as a sign of God's infinite love and creativity.
Love: through word and action we will live the Gospel, serving others generously and unselfishly, always seeking to be a blessing to our communities.
In doing these things, we will deepen our relationship with the living God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit, and will grow in numbers, in discipleship, and in love for one another

Royal British Legion

This year marks the centenary of the RBL – formed after the first World War to fight for the rights of those who gave so much.

Sadly, it also marks the demise of the Clipston branch which for 52 years has carried out the village Poppy collection, in that time raising around £58,000.

The branch is now too small to carry out wider fundraising activities but this does not mean there will not be a Poppy collection in the village in the future; hopefully the Poppy stall will be on the village green again on Saturday 30th October and there should be a house to house collection. A short Remembrance will take place at the Clipston war memorial, followed a service at the chapel on Sunday 14 November.

A huge thank you to our most willing collectors – we will still need you! Every Poppy counts, with contributions making a difference to all those that the RBL supports. So let's make this years' collection a good one and go out with a bang!

Sussie Clements

Dear Toby A brief note to let you know that my dear wife Sussie collapsed and died in my arms on Tuesday morning. She had become very weak and I believe that her heart just gave out. A blessing for her, she is at peace and pain free, for us there is the grief of coming to terms with life without her physical presence. However, her legacy lives on in the many lives she touched and people she helped. Please let folk in Sibbertoft know - thank you. Best wishes Pip C
